

The communications team Re-Charge

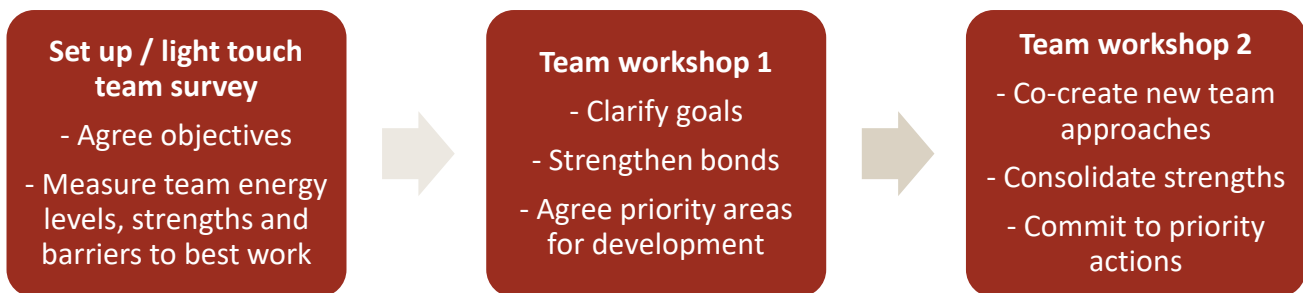

Review, refocus and reenergise your communications team

Our communications team re-charge provides the space for your team to review, refocus and reenergise. Through a short series of time-efficient, online or face to face workshops, we support the team to pull together and feel fit to meet the challenges of new ways of working.

The Re-Charge workshops will:

- √ Review and strengthen your shared purpose and goals
- √ Pinpoint and capture what has been working well - so you can build on your strengths
- √ Extract and understand different perspectives within the team, and agree shared areas for development
- √ Identify new ways of working to strengthen collaboration and creativity in a hybrid workplace
- √ Agree a few high priority actions that will make the biggest difference to your team in the coming months

Your journey on the team Re-Charge programme

How we support you and your team

The team re-charge provides you with a boost in capacity to focus on team development. Your team remains in control of the outputs, whilst we take care of the process. Our coaching and facilitation tools will build team energy and consensus, as well as injecting new ideas to strengthen collaboration.
